THE TURKISH FLEET AT ANCHOR IN THE BOSPHORUS—SKETCHED FROM A HILL NEAR BUYUKDERE—THE BLACK SEA IN THE DISTANCE.

Meantime, Mehemet Ali had been induced to withdraw his forces from Asia Minor (June, 1833), and a temporary calm was secured. But still, notwithstanding the indefatigable exertions of the Ministers of the Western Powers, the Egyptian question was not settled. Armaments were kept up both in Turkey and Egypt; and the Porte, in particular, commenced the construction of a formidable fleet, dominated it was apprehended to coerce his rebellious vassal. At length Mehemet Ali (who had gradually increased his pretensions upon every occasion of treaty) threw off his allegiance altogether, by a note addressed (June, 1839) to the Consuls of England, France, Austria, and Prussia at Cairo, in which he declared that he would, henceforth, not pay any tribute whatever to the Porte, and that he considered himself the independent Sovereign of Egypt, Arabia, and Syria. It was not, however, till the following year that the renewal of hostilities, so long threatened, actually took place; the initiative being taken by the Ottoman Government, but with signal ill-success. In June, the troops of Ibrahim Pacha, which had hitherto maintained a defensive attitude, attacked and completely routed the Ottoman forces at Nezib. The news of this defeat arrived at Constantinople on the 5th of July; but Sultan Mahmoud was spared the pain of hearing it: a week previously he had ceased to breathe, having died suddenly in the night of an internal disease, the symptoms of which he had concealed from his physicians, lest they would make it a ground for restricting his personal attention to affairs of state.

The disease of Noah was, a few days afterwards, followed up by an extraordinary act of treason on the part of the Capitan Pacha, who to command of the fleet, which the late Sultan had been at such cost and pains to collect, instead of using it against the enemy as he had been instructed, actually sailed into the port of Alexandria (14th July), and placed the ships at the disposal of Mehemet Ali. The latter sent immediately to Constantinople to declare that he would not give up the fleet, which had so fallen into his hands, until he was acknowledged as hereditary sovereign of the station which he ruled. This event, however, belongs more properly to the reign of the present Sultan, Abdul-Medjid; before proceeding to treat of which, we propose to make some observations upon the character and domestic policy of the deceased monarch.

CASTLE OF THE SEVEN TOWERS, CONSTANTINOPLE.

MAHMOUD—HIS REFORMS.

Mahmoud II. was a reformer, worthy to be classed at least upon an equal footing with Peter the Great, who, by a little more than a century his predecessor, endeavoured to assimilate his rude subjects with the civilised nations of Western Europe, and to consolidate the Imperial power in the place of rival intestine factions. But the Turkish Monarch had a more difficult task to perform than the Russian—he had to contend against religious fanaticism, which rendered it repugnant to his subjects in any way to imitate or assimilate with the people of the rest of Europe. It has been suggested, by some writers, that if he had proceeded more gradually, and in a conciliatory manner, in his reforms, he might perhaps have been more successful with them. But this is much to be doubted. There is a certain point of feudalism and moral degradation, where the ingenious and most persuasive arguments are utterly unavailing, where coercion is absolutely necessary as a preliminary to persuasion. Mahmoud has been charged with unnecessary cruelty. Undoubtedly, his reign was one of the most blood-stained in history; but we do not think he took pleasure in acts of cruelty, or adopted a single measure of severity which he did not consider to be essential to the attainment of that order of things which would ensure peace for the future. And certainly it is a fact, which we remark with satisfaction, that when he died he left an inheritance to his son which, during fifteen years since elapsed, it has been possible to govern almost without resource to the sword. Not only have there been no revolutions during this comparatively foggy period, but capital punishm[illegible] have been virtually abolished. It now remains to mention some of the principal measures of reform adopted or attempted by the remarkable man of whose reign we have [illegible] been treating.

The [illegible] of a regular army, under [illegible] got discipline, in the enthusiastic and turbulent Janissaries, has been already spoken of at length. It was upon the creation of the fall of Hamidi, that Sultan Mahmoud determined upon a still further reform of his military forces, in accordance with European habits, and issued a hatti-sherif enjoining all Mussulmans to a readiness to carry arms to discontinue the use of the long robes, turbans, &c., constituting the ancient Ottoman costumes, and to adopt Cossack trousers and the red cap, or fez. This change caused a great deal of discontent; but it was not the only approach

DESCRITTIONE DELL'IMPERIO TVRCHESCO.

QUESTA unica Tavola mostra tutto l'Imperio dell'Ottomano, ò dell'Osmanida famiglia: il qual Imperio è ampissimo, e potentissimo, per che abbraccia molte provincie, e regioni d'Europa, d'Africa, e d'Asia. Onde in Europa distendendosi presso la riviera del golfo Adriatico, da' confini dell'Epidauro, hoggi Ragusi, và circondando tutto'l mar Egeo, & insieme la Propontide, e non picciola portione del mar Eusino, che vien terminata dalla città di Teodosia, laquale hora dicono Caffa posta nella Taurica Chersoneso. Il qual spatio è intorno ottomila miglia. Ma per la fra terra s'allunga da Giavarino terra immurata d'Ungheria, che gli Habitanti nominano Iiab, presa dal Turco l'anno 1594, insino à Constantinopoli situata ne' confini dell'Europa. Nel qual spatio si contengono queste Regioni soggette immediatamente al Turco. La maggiore, e la miglior parte dell'Ungheria, di cui ragionammo nella XX. Tavola. La Romania, già la Tracia, e tutte le provincie della Grecia, cioè la Macedonia, l'Epiro, l'Achaia, il Peloponneso, hora la Morea, con tutte l'Isole del mar Egeo, hoggi Arcipelago: & anco la parte dell'Illirico, ò della Schiavonia: delle quali tutte da noi si trattò nella XXI. Tavola. V'è ancora la Bosnia, la Servia, la Rascia, e la Bulgaria. Di più sin' à quest'anno in Europa furono tributarie dell'Imperadore de' Turchi queste regioni, la Transilvania, l'una e l'altra

SURRENDER OF THE TOWER OF PRASTO, BOMARSUND.

THE SURRENDER OF PRASTO.

(From a Correspondent.)

The Tower of Prasto, one of those forming the outworks to the great fortress of Bomarsund, stood on the north-east angle of the island of that name. It mounted twenty guns—in two tiers of casemates, and six en barbette, on the roof—covering with its fire the approach from the northward to the main channel, through which ships must pass in going to the southward of the Aland group. On the 13th ult. it was invested by a considerable force of French and English Marines, with some field-guns; and on the morning of the 16th it was bombarded at long range, for nearly three hours, by a squadron of English and French steamers under Rear-Admiral Plumridge, without receiving any material damage. On the surrender of the large fort becoming known, [illegible] firing; and at 4.30 p.m. a white flag was hoisted on the tower. [illegible] the garrison [illegible], fully equipped, and formed on the glacis in front. Some companies of the [illegible] were soon immediately brought down, and the Commandant, advancing to meet [illegible] of the French and English Commanders, [illegible] of H.M.S. Arrogant. The garrison, con[illegible] and three officers, was very shortly afterwards embarked in a French steamer for conveyance to Bomarsund. The damage done to the tower by the fire of the steamers was almost entirely confined to the roof and guns en barbette, two of these were disabled, and the [illegible] of the roof considerably shattered by shot and shell; neither the works of the [illegible] nor the security of the bomb-proof casemates was in any way affected. Two men were found killed, and three wounded, by the fire of the steamers, in the morning.

The accompanying Sketch, taken on the spot, represents the surrender of the Commandant of the fort to the French and English [illegible]. On the left of the picture are two companies of French infantry, with their colours and two field-pieces; a third field-piece in the gateway. The garrison is drawn up in front of the tower; they wore helmets and long grey coats, black cross belts, and carried long bright-barrelled muskets. In the centre, the French Commandant is in the act of receiving the sword of the Russian Colonel.

While the Peace Congress has been sitting in London the Turkish and Greek fleets have been [illegible] at one another at intervals, though with no very serious results. In the middle of December the Turkish fleet left the Dardanelles and engaged the Greek fleet off Imbros Island at a range of seven miles, the Greeks withdrawing after an hour's firing, during which a Whitehead torpedo holed the Hamidieh and killed one Turk. Last week the Turkish cruiser passed through the lines of Greek destroyers during a fog and bombarded the powder magazine on the island of Lyra. Finally, on Saturday, an engagement was reported off Lemnos, in which the Turks were said to be victorious.
